Cuca's Black Beans

When the beans are "swollen" place them in a pan and begin cooking until softened (about 45 minutes or so).

In a frying pan, heat the olive oil and then add onions, green pepper and garlic. Sauté the ingredients until the onions are translucent.

Add 1 cup of the drained beans to the pan and mash them well.

Take all the ingredients from the frying pan and add them to the rest of the black beans.

Add salt, pepper, oregano, bay leaf and sugar and let boil (covered) for another hour.

Add the vinegar and wine and continue to cook on low heat for another hour.

If the beans are too watery, remove the lid and cook until the beans thicken.

When the beans are ready to serve, add the olive oil.

Note: who ever heard of "draining" a can of black beans? Definitely not Cuban cuisine!
